Cultural forces surpassing biological forces in determining human evolution Through behavior, humans copy and pass along memes (ideas, habits, skills) that are the building blocks of cultural evolution Human ingenuity triumphing over biological evolution, with the examples of diabetes and insulin, near-sightedness and glasses Changes in human lifestyle over the past 50,000 years have more to do with the evolution of memes, not genes One of the most important engines of evolutionary change is sexual reproduction. Most organisms on Earth reproduce sexually, in spite of the time and effort involved in finding a suitable mate. Sexual selection is the root cause behind much of the extravagance seen in nature, particularly with birds, and may even have played a role in the development of certain aspects of human behavior. Key Concepts: Asexual reproduction, sexual reproduction, clones, sexual selection, evolutionary psychology, behavioral adaptations. Answer Key: Available at the biology instructor resources subscription page.
